

Abigail Smith Adams

November 22, 1744 - October 28, 1818

Quincy, Massachusetts

Abigail Smith Adams died in Quincy, Massachusetts, on October 28, 1818. She was seventy-three. Born in Weymouth on November 22, 1744, she married John Adams in 1764 and spent the Revolution managing a farm, children, and a correspondence that is still the clearest window into that marriage.

She told him to remember the ladies. She ran the house in his long absences, survived the vice-presidency and the presidency, and lived to see a son in the same office. The letters are not decoration. They are the work.

Quincy holds both tombs. The parish church is the family vault.

Services

She is entombed in the United First Parish Church in Quincy, Massachusetts.
