

Franklin Dale Iannaccone

September 3, 1931 - August 5, 2022

Shreveport, Louisiana

Friends in Shreveport remember Franklin Dale Iannaccone, who died on August 5, 2022 at 90. Born on September 3, 1931 and raised among Portuguese-American manners that never needed a speech. He grew up believing that showing up was the first craft.

He ran twine that decided winters for farms that did not write novels. A baler twine knife on a nail preferred work over speeches. Colleagues still mention a baler twine knife on a nail.

He and Doris married in 1958 and raised a son and a daughter without needing an audience. After Doris's death in 2015, he held to quiet habits-coffee before dawn, a tended yard, a voice on the phone that still checked in.

Neighbors remember snow shoveled past the corner that was not required. Mornings were his favorite shift at home. He died in Shreveport, on streets that already knew his pace. The tools are still hung where a hand can find them in the dark.

What remains is not a legend but a practice: showing up, keeping a promise, leaving a place better than you found it. His life was the kind America is built from and too often forgets to name.

Services

A quiet remembrance in Shreveport. Those who wish may give to a neighborhood library, food pantry, or workers' aid fund instead of flowers.
