

Greta Ingrid Lundquist

September 12, 1946 - September 8, 2026

Green Bay, Wisconsin

Greta Ingrid Lundquist died in Green Bay on September 8, 2026. She was seventy-nine. Born there on September 12, 1946, she grew up in a house where Swedish was for the kitchen and English was for the street, and she kept both. She became a mill clerk because the paper plant was hiring and because she had already learned, at home, that a correct count is a form of keeping people upright.

She spent twenty-eight years in an office that smelled of pulp and coffee. She kept a second carton of milk for the clerk who arrived after the count. She treated a government commodity form as a problem of seasoning, not a humiliation. On the mornings the buses ran late she still opened the ledger.

She married Ellis Lundquist in 1967. He drove a laundry truck and died in 2006. They raised a daughter and a son in a bungalow with a maple that dropped more work than shade. After Ellis was gone she kept his saucer on the drainboard for a season, then gave it to a granddaughter who liked cereal at odd hours. She sang alto in a choir that rehearsed on Wednesdays whether anyone new showed up or not.

People on her block remember a woman who would freeze extra cardamom bread in coffee cans and leave them on porches after a funeral. She disliked a speech, loved a clean ledger, and could tell you which year the mill switched from one grade to the next. She died in Green Bay, in weather she had always said was honest. The ledger still opens. Someone else will count the milk.

Services

A gathering at her church hall in Green Bay. Friends may bring a covered dish. A gift to a mill meal fund is welcome.
