

Jesse Ray Allgyer

September 16, 1927 - May 27, 2025
Stockton, California

In Stockton, on May 27, 2025, Jesse Ray Allgyer died at 97. Born in Stockton on September 16, 1927; Ukrainian-American cooking and payday thrift set the tone of the house. From the start, he treated promises like tools: keep them sharp, do not lend them lightly.

He tended mullers that presses would not forgive if wrong. A sand muller scoop labeled meant the day belonged to accuracy. Colleagues still mention a sand muller scoop labeled.

He and Joyce married in 1954 and raised a son and a daughter without needing an audience. After Joyce's death in 2018, he held to quiet habits-coffee before dawn, a tended yard, a voice on the phone that still checked in.

Neighbors remember a rake leaned against a shared fence after a storm. He liked early mornings before the heat or the noise. He died in Stockton, among streets he never needed to explain. The recipe card is still stained in the useful places.

What remains is not a legend but a practice: showing up, keeping a promise, leaving a place better than you found it. His life was the kind America is built from and too often forgets to name.

Services

A quiet remembrance in Stockton. Those who wish may give to a neighborhood library, food pantry, or workers' aid fund instead of flowers.
