

Katalin Eva Nemeth

June 18, 1942 - September 3, 2026

Allentown, Pennsylvania

Katalin Eva Nemeth died in Allentown on September 3, 2026. She was eighty-four. Born there on June 18, 1942, to parents who had come from Budapest by way of a long patience, she grew up in a city that still had silk at the edges and steel in the middle. She learned English at school and a second set of manners at the table. She never treated either language as a costume.

She spent twenty-two years on a winding line that turned thread into boxes the rest of the country wore without thinking. She was the adult who could sit on a stool without making a production of it. She kept extra socks in a locker for the woman whose morning had already been too long. When a buyer sent a new grade sheet, she translated it twice: once into English a tired crew could use, and once into the quiet that says you are not in trouble for needing help.

She married Daniel Nemeth in 1963. They bought a bungalow in a neighborhood that later became expensive around them. They stayed. A son and a daughter went through public schools she trusted more than she trusted real-estate talk. After Daniel died in 2009 she kept the garden of paprika peppers and the habit of walking a neighbor's child to the bus when a shift ran late.

Neighbors remember a woman who swept her sidewalk and yours if the wind had been unfair, who kept a coffee can of buttons labeled in two languages, and who could sit through a graduation without making it about herself. She liked the creek early, before the heat, when the trees still looked like a place a person could walk. She died in Allentown, the only city she had ever needed. The extra socks are still in the locker. That would have pleased her more than a eulogy.

Services

A memorial in Allentown with tea afterward. In lieu of flowers, a gift to a mill hardship fund or adult English class is welcome.
