

Raymond Carl Yoshimatsu

May 6, 1933 - November 20, 2025

Colorado Springs, Colorado

Raymond Carl Yoshimatsu of Colorado Springs died on November 20, 2025 at the age of 92. Born on May 6, 1933, with German-American roots that shaped the table more than the flag. From the start, he treated promises like tools: keep them sharp, do not lend them lightly.

He climbed work that other people trusted without knowing his name. A signal maintainer key ring rode in his pocket like a spare prayer. Colleagues still mention a signal maintainer key ring.

He and Joyce married in 1957 and raised a daughter and two sons without needing an audience. After Joyce's death in 2018, he held to quiet habits-coffee before dawn, a tended yard, a voice on the phone that still checked in.

Neighbors remember covered dishes that arrived without a speech. Mornings were his favorite shift at home. He died in Colorado Springs, on streets that already knew his pace. The lunch pail still waits by the back door.

What remains is not a legend but a practice: showing up, keeping a promise, leaving a place better than you found it. His life was the kind America is built from and too often forgets to name.

Services

A quiet remembrance in Colorado Springs. Those who wish may give to a neighborhood library, food pantry, or workers' aid fund instead of flowers.
