

Greensboro building permits, September 28–October 4, 2026

Public notice. Greensboro’s public permit map service lists 72 building permits with an issue date from September 28, 2026, through October 4, 2026.

Application types: New Construction (28), Int/Ext Alteration (22), Addition (7), Miscellaneous (6), Deck (3), Reroof (2). Nearly all rows show Issued status on the layer.

Mail ZIP values appearing often: 28110 (8), 27408 (7), 29063 (7), 27455 (6), 27405 (6), 27401 (4). Note that mail ZIP can belong to an owner or contractor mailing address, so it is a softer geography signal than a job-site ZIP.

Summed TotalCost across rows that carried the field: $20,723,171.

Greensboro’s mix this week tilts to new construction and interior/exterior alterations — a Guilford County signal that both greenfield and remodel work moved through the counter.

What the count covers

Fields are aggregated from Greensboro’s building-permits map service for the issue-date window. This page does not list street addresses or contractor names.

Why it matters

On /nc/guilford, weekly issued counts help residents and small builders see whether alterations or new builds are leading. Quiet byline: Building permits · sourced with Filed Nearby.

Piedmont building week

Greensboro’s application-type mix — new construction beside interior/exterior alterations — is a two-speed story: greenfield or replacement builds, and reinvestment in existing stock.

Guilford County readers should remember city limits matter. This paper is Greensboro’s layer, not High Point or unincorporated county permits.

Cost field tips

TotalCost on the open file is a city-supplied figure summed across rows that carried it. Blank or zero rows are omitted from the sum logic in our enrichment, so the headline dollar figure can understate true activity if staff left costs empty.

Always confirm a single job on Greensboro’s portal before making a property decision.

How to read this notice

Read application type first. Treat mail ZIP rankings cautiously. Confirm parcels on the city’s portal.

